Sunday, December 25, 1910.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo, the angel of the Lord came mon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afresid. And the angel said unto them. Fear not, for behold. I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swadding clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying. Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.—Luke, H., 8-14.

The Christmas season thus brings men more into accord with the divine the needy, and that empty hearts and erasele choir will be named to musically benefits that all have from heaven, and for the bonor of the better sentiments of the mind and heart. The imbrance of the miraculous help and saving power which humanity has received from Christ the Lord.

It is fit, then, that this appiversary is honored and reverenced in higher more unselfish devotion than any other. And as long as this memorial is so observed, the heart of humanity will ence between a delegation of a musical be sound and the divine sacrifice in its nature and one of generally representabehalf will yield abundant fruitage in faith and good works.

The settlement of the threatened rail road strike is one of the signally im portant events of the closing year. The eredit for this is given largely to Mr. harles P. Neill, mediator in the trou To mankind nearly two thousand bles; and it certainly removes a heavy weight of anxiety from the mind of ev ery business man in the United States while the relief to all this region could hardly be overestimated.

The settlement is on a basis of a 10 per cent raise in the salaries of the railroad engineers. The details will be made public at as early an bour as possible. But the great thing is that the settlement is made.

It is quite in accord with the Christ mas spirit that this immensely impor tant settlement should be made at this time. The discontent of the railway engineers has been brewing for a good while, and it had to be threshed out. A strike would have come with peculiar distress upon all this Western country. especially at this time of the year. But now, bappily, it is averted; the Christ mas spirit prevailed, and there will be no strike. But there will be good bene fits to the engineers by reason of the negotiations and arbitration of the difficulties of the position. All concerned are to be congratulated, and the me diator especially is to be praised for his work for peace, amity, and goodwill

PROSPECT SAID TO BE GOOD.

As The Tribune is advised, there is good prospect that the Salt Lake tabrepresent Utah at the big National Land and Irrigation Congress to be held in New York City in November, 1911. It will be recalled that at one time there was an effort to have the Ogden

choir selected for this distinction. Indeed, the matter is not yet entirely settled, and doubtless will not be until the return home to Ogden of Hon. Fred J. Kiesel, who is one of the chief supporters of the claim of the Ogden choir for recognition. However, we are told, there is a disposition, and a growing one, to recognize the fact that where the State is to be represented in this way, the capital city should be given the first privilege to send the necessary representation. There is some differtive character. It is well known that large choirs or choruses, in order to do the most effective service and make the least, and infinitely better if for years. It requires a long time for the singers and their conductors to become en rap port, and to thoroughly understand each the other's humors and permanent char recognized truth that the best results are obtainable from one compact organization of long standing. With a business or of some particular avocation, it is feasible to select the membership from any and all localities. In where only one locality is allowed to furnish the delegation. Obviously though, and as heretofore pointed out, Therefore, as we have indicated, there is a disposition to recognize the necessity for representation from an organization of long standing and constant training under one leadership, and to concede to Salt Lake, the capital city, the right of first choice. Today is Christmas day—the most holy, yet the most happy, of all day of the year. The question of whethe December 25 is really the anniversary of the birth of Christ was for a long time a mosted one. In the carriest periods of the birth of the same and we find the the birth of Christ was for a long time a mooted one. In the earliest periods of which we have any record we find this feast was observed at various periods, the lst and the 6th of January being the dates on which a portion of the Christians celebrated it, others doing so on March 29, the time of the "Jewish Passover," while yet others selected September 29, that being the "Feast of Tabermacles."

There were those also who observed to April 20, while an authority writing on the subject states that in Egypt brist was believed to have been born on anuary 6. For a long time the Greeks elebrated our Lord's birth on the Fenst of Epiphany. In a sermon preached by it. Chrysostom at Antioch on December 5, in 386, he says: "It is not ten years have this day (Christmas, December 26) was clearly known to us, but it has been vas clearly known to us, but it has be amiliar from the beginning to those w twell in the west. "Kirchenlexikon," an accepted and The "Kircheniexikon," an accepted and undoubted authority, says that "The special feast in honor of the Savior's birth was introduced in the year 354 under Pope Liberius, and soon after in Constantinople in 378, but previous to this the feast was celebrated upon Epiphany. Chambers names Pope Julius as having introduced the feast in the church ritual, but if 354, the year named by the "Kircheniexikon" is correct, Julius could not have promulgated the office, for he died in 352, and Liberius was chosen as his successor.

The name given by the ancient Goths and Saxons to the festival of the winter solution was Jal, or Yule, the latter term forming to the present day the designation in the Scottish dialect of designation in the Scottish dialect of Christmas and preserved also in the name of the Yule log. Perhaps the etymology of no term has excited any greater discussion among antiquarians. The most probable derivation of the word is from the Gothic "gigul," or "hiul," the origin of the modern word "wheel," and bearing the same significance. According to this very probable explanation, the Yule festival received its name from being the turning point of the explanation, the rule festival received it name from being the turping point of the year, or the period at which the fler orb of day made a revolution in its an nual circuit and entered his norther journey. A confirmation of this view is afforded by the circumstance that in the old Clog almanacs a wheel is the device of the confirmation of the At present Christmas day, if somewhat

At Present Christmas day, if somewhat shorn of its ancient glories and unmarked by that belsterous joility and exuberance of animal spirits which distinguished it in the time of our ancestors, is, nevertheless, the holiday in which, of all others throughout the year, all chases of society most generally participate. Partaking of a religious character, the forenous of the day is usually passed in church, after which, either at noon or eventime, the reunited members of the family assemble around the Christmas hoard. Separated as many of these are during the rest of the year, they will make an effort to meet tegether around the Christmas hearth. The hallowed feelings of domestic love and attachment, the pleasing remembrance of the past and the joyous anticipations of the future all cluster around these family gatherings and in the sacred associations with which they are intertwined, and in the active deeds of kindness and in the sacress which cluster around these filmily gatherings and in the sacred associations with which they are intertwined, and in the active deeds of kindness and henevolence which they tend to call forth, a reason may almost be found of the angelic message to the shepheria of Bethlehem: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace and good will toward men."

Amid so many popular customs at Christmas, full of so much sweet and simple poetry, there is perhaps none more charming than that of the Christmas carols, which celebrate in joyous and yet devout strains the nativity of the Savior. The term is believed to be derived from the Latin "cantara." to sing, and "rola!" an interjection expressive of joy. The practice appears to be as ancient as the celebration of Christmas. The decking of churches, houses and shops with evergreens at Christmas aprings from a period far anterior to the revelation of Christianity, and seems proximately to be derived from the custom prevalent during the Saturnalla of the inhabitants of Rome ornamenting their temples and dwellings with green boughs. It is evident that the use of flowers and green boughs as a means of decoration is almost instinctive in human nature; and we accordingly find scarcely
